

Preparation Checklist

This list is not all-inclusive – it's just what works for us.

What to do before you	leave on vour overseas t	rin
What to do before you	icave dii yddi dveiseas i	uip.

Register your trip with your embassy
Leave your destination contact information and itinerary with friends and family
Email scans of your vital documents (passport photo page, Form 4457, Itinerary, etc.) to yourself using an account (like Yahoo!) that can be accessed easily at any internet capable computer
You can purchase gun floater insurance for firearms you are transporting (SCI has a members plan available)
You can purchase short-term medivac insurance to cover your expenses if you incur a medical event and need to be evacuated back to the states (MedJet Assist is one, Global Rescue is another)
Research phone options if you need to stay connected (SIM card for your phone, pay as you go phone purchased in destination country, or satellite phone)
Research the current weather for your destination region to ensure your clothing will be appropriate
Research health concerns for your destination region; make efforts to be protected from disease if necessary. Your doctor or health department can assist in determining if there are any threats where you are going.
Research passport and visa requirements for your destination; have enough blank visa pages (in addition to endorsement pages) available in your passport and check passport expiration requirements
Photocopy (and carry with you on your trip) your passport, US form 4457, invitation to hunt, etc.
Make and carry a list of contacts: your country's Consulate in destination country, Safari Outfitter, Travel Agent, hotels you'll be staying at, emergency contacts such as family, doctor, etc.
Get a list of your prescriptions from your doctor to carry with you
Acquire ample medications to last throughout trip and beyond (just in case) - many health insurance companies offer a periodic "vacation waiver" on prescription quantities covered to allow you to stock up for a trip
Check with the airlines you will be flying with for current information regarding:

- Prohibited carry-on items
- o Allowed carry-on liquid amounts
- o Carry-on bag limitations
- Screening procedures
- o Number of checked bags per ticketed flyer
- o Weight restrictions of checked bags and overweight fees
- o Firearms regulations
